Style: See following example:

- Halpin, A. and Buckley, L.A. (1995) "Archaeological excavations at the Dominican Priory, Drogheda, Co. Louth" Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy 95C, 175-253.
- Julkenen, H., Heinoven, O. P. and Pyorala, K. (1971) "Hyperostosis of the spine in an adult population. Its relation to hyperglycaemia and obesity." Annals of Rheumatic Disease. 30, 605.
- McKinley, J. (1989) "Cremations—possibilities and limitations." In C. Roberts, F. Lee and J. Bintliff 'Burial Archaeology Current Research, Methods and Developments' BAR British series 211.

16 Use of Italics

- words not in English for example latin words, plant names
- Table and plate title
- running headers

17 Latin Terms

To be punctuated as follows:

e.g., i.e.,

etc.,

ibid.,

op.cit.,

et al.,

18 Name Titles

Titles consisting of the first and last letter should not be punctuated:

e.g. Mrs X, Dr Y

but longer title such as Professor should be written in full when in a sentence and the contraction punctuated when in a list - Prof. Z

19 Bullet points

Bullet points should not be punctuated, but should start with a capital letter. They should be short. Points that become full sentences should be changed from a bullet point to either a roman numeral or a dash.

e.g.,

- bullet point

- dash point

i roman numeral

20 Punctuation – commas

When referring to Acts of the Oireachtas, please use one comma rather than brackets when referring to the year of enactment:

e.g., The Heritage Act 1995' contains many sections but the National Monuments Act 1930' is even longer.

The use of the Oxford comma is encouraged:

Where more than two words or phrases or grouping occur together in a sequence, a comma should precede the and

March 2009

e.g., areas of natural beauty, architectural monuments, and sites of historical interest.

21 Numbers

Numbers up to ten should be written in full. Over ten, numerals should be used.

Percentages should be written as numerals in any situation – 3% not three percent
